

In the previous phase of social equity audit, constant attempts had been made to develop equity standards, which will help in framing methodologies and tools to measure the level of exclusion at various levels. In the new phase of SEW, Praxis takes the call to further take efforts to develop equity standards in the current context apart from the location of disaster (Tsunami) in the inception stage. The focus is to formulate certain common standards to support the partners. It will build up their own indicators and parameters to measure the level of exclusion as well as inclusion in various development projects.
